Adonis and his brother Jiggys Robinson lost both of their parents at age nine. He turned to music and writing as mean of self expression and comfort in dealing with trauma in his life to remain positive and focused. His passion for music and his native country has taken him in a creative direction to use soca, reggae and dancehall music to entertain as well as to promote St Vincent and the Grenadines, Caribbean culture and lifestyle whilst living in Northern Ireland and the UK. In August 2016, Major Dan performed as a finalist of the UK Soca Monarch Competition in London.

Major Dan is the first Caribbean musician currently based in the region to introduce Northern Ireland to combine soca, reggae and dancehall music apart from Grammy award dancehall artist

Sean Paul who recently headlined the MTV concert to celebrate opening of the new Titanic Belfast Building in Belfast, Northern Ireland.

A number of Vincentians also took part in the making of the video.
