

West Indies vs Ireland Cricket in September 2017

24 July 2017

Belfast, NORTHERN IRELAND: The West Indies will be travelling to Northern Ireland to play a One-Day International (ODI) against Ireland at Stormont Civil Service Cricket Grounds.

The ODI will be played on Wednesday September 13 ahead of their one-day series against England.

Ireland last played the West Indies in an ODI during the World Cup in January 2016, when half centuries from Paul Stirling, Ed Joyce and Niall O'Brien led Ireland to a famous four-wicket win.

The Irish coach at that time was Phil Simmons, who now is at the helm of his native West Indies.

Phil Simmons commented: "I'm really looking forward to bringing the West Indies team to play Ireland. I had eight great years there as coach and made some lasting friendships as well as winning trophies. It should be a tough contest and Irish conditions will be ideal in helping our preparations for England."
